TWO TONED AND EXTRA TALL

When celebrity designer Jonathan Scott envisioned the kitchen of this 100-year-old New Orleans double shotgun home he was renovating for his popular network TV show Brothers Take New Orleans, he wanted it to feel like it was original to the era in which it was built, yet functional for today's families. He accomplished that by opting for double-stacked upper cabinets with wide crown molding that took advantage of the kitchen's height, and sleek dark lowers to add interest.

RUSTICALLY MODERN IN NOLA

Celebrity designer Drew Scott was looking to create a rustically modern kitchen for his popular network TV show Brothers Take New Orleans. He used our Monaco door profile painted the dark gray color Stone to create a sleek finish that tied in well with the rest of the kitchen's rustic finishes.

An 8-foot marble breakfast bar with a modern waterfall edge sits atop Monaco cabinets painted Tru White. An integrated microwave saves counter space and hides the appliance from view.

FARMHOUSE FEEL IN CENTRAL FLORIDA

The home of Lori and Clay Littleton might not look like a farmhouse from the outside, but take one step inside this 12-year-old ranch in Sanford, Florida and you've arrived in a simpler time, where clean lines, crisp white hues, and reclaimed wood are king. The modern farmhouse flavor is arguably the hottest design trend we're seeing right now. But this trend is more than a look. It's a feeling. It's casual, it's comforting, and it evokes Americana. As Lori's own design style evolved, she and her husband slowly started to renovate their home to match up with the modern farmhouse look and feel, adding shiplap walls and rustic, antiques decor. Their latest project, a kitchen redesign, was a complete renovation that included the removal of a wall and relocation of the sink.
